KENNETH ALFORD FOOTNOTING HISTORY

Kenneth Alford's arresting title, ARMY OF THE NILE, evokes the past with his customary and telling dedication to a time in history when British soldiers were gathered in this part of Africa. Why they were there is a subject long passed into the record of the 20th century.

In this however musically simple but highly convincing and stylistic little essay in march form, Kenneth J. Alford (1881-1945) expresses all that words cannot say of what an Army of the Nile must have been all about. And here's music written in great contrast by a man at the height of his craft, a piece that is clearly his in a style of march composition unlike that of any other composer: those marvelous bass-lines, "simple" scales, flashing attacks and striking contrasts - major/minor - add to a musically pleasant and unique aggressiveness.

The Army of the Nile and what it represented have passed, of course — but, again, the music survives the occasions, the purpose, the moment, and provides expression that supersedes press comment and historical entry. With ARMY OF THE NILE I invite you to join Kenneth Alford in a review of those minutes of history as only music can record them.
